

The Roundel Necklace

Congratulations.

You are now a part of Aviation History. The Roundel Necklace is a hand-crafted jewelry piece inspired in the early aviation days.

Roundels were first introduced at the onset of WWI to differentiate friend from foe by marking the nationality of the aircraft.

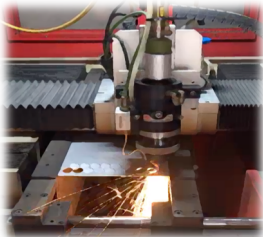

The Roundel Necklace is a tribute to the passion for flying and the pride of national identity.

Heritage and craftsmanship combine in a manual manufacturing process to create this a high-quality pendant out of 316L stainless steel or grade 5 titanium.

Initially, the tough raw metal alloys are carved in the lathe, precision drilled using CNC technology and individually engraved.

Then, low density epoxy-based enamel is applied to create vivid and durable colors. Finally, each piece is mirror polished all by hand.

The Roundel Necklace is complete with an exclusively designed, fully detachable, leather cord with a magnetic clasp.

The design process involves numerous sketches, CAD software and the use of 3D printing technology for prototyping.

The result of all this is a jewelry piece which is a real testament of love to the history of aviation.
